The test, according to top officials, will start within the next month using the Osiris reactor at the French Atomic Energy Commission's Saclay nuclear research center.

If the test proves as successful as preliminary experiments indicate. it could signal a major hreakthrough in the non-proliferation efforts of the major nuclear powers.

Percentage Differs

Unlike the fuel now used in the Osiris reactor, in which the uranium is enriched to 93 percent, the new fuel will have an enrichment of only 7 percent to 8 percent, although it is expected that it can be used to perform most of the experiments now conducted with reactors using highly enriched uranium. Most experts believe that uranium enrichment of 50 percent is required for construction of even a primitive nuclear weapon.

If the new fuel, which the French call caramel, proves satisfactory in operation of the 70-megawatt Osiris reactor, officials indicate that they intend to provide it in-stead of highly enriched uranium to developing countries operating research reactors.

This step, where carried out, would eliminate the possibility of a

One Morning's Auction Sets Records for Almost Everything

LONDON. June 22 (UPI) - Medieval works of art from the Robert von Hirsch collection sold for such phenomenal prices today that half the collection created the biggest single art auction session in history. The morning session alooe barely missed beating the entire Mentmore "sale of the century" total.

So high were the prices that one world record was set, then broken, then broken again. Two items went for more than $2 million each. The 197 medieval works of art —only half the number amassed over a 70-year-period by a collector who willed that his collection should be sold to "share the joys of ownership" — sold for a total of $11.78 million. It was the biggest single-session art sale of all time.

Sotheby Parke Bernet, the auctioneers, said that it missed beating the eight-day "sale of the century" dispersal of the contents of Ment-more Towers by only £21,000 ($38,850). See story on Page 7.

4 German Terrorists Captured in Bulgaria

Berlin Guard Observes One At a Beach

BONN, June 22 (API — A vaca-uoning Berlin prison guard spotted one of his former charges, accused terrorist Till Meyer, sunbathing on a Bulgarian beach and gave author-ities the break they needed to round up four West German terror-ist suspects, officials said today.

It was the latest in a series of successes in West Germany's war against urban guerrillas - and the second time that an East European Communist government aided in the capture.

German authorities said the four included escaped kidnap-morder suspect Meyer, 34, and Gabriele Rollnik. 28. allegedly one of four women who helped free Meyer from a West Berlin jail in a daring rescue May 27. during 1975 Berlin city elections.

Meyer was freed from Berlin's maximum-security Moabil prison last month while standing trial for both crimes, when two women posing as lawyers pulled guns on the Soviet Union and Cuba were nive back in West Berlin with Rollnik later today, Mr. Baum said. He said Rollnik was wanted for armed robbery, her suspected role in the kidnapping of Viennese clothing millionaire Walter Palmers last November and for allegedly helping three other women free Meyer last month. Mr. Palmers was released after his family paid a multimillion-dollar ransom.

Stuermer may have been involved in the Meyer escape, and the Lorenz kidnapping, Mr. Baum said. She and the third, unidentified woman remained in an undisclosed West German location for further police questioning.

Mr. Baum called the latest four arrests a new triumph for compoter-aided German police techniques and thanked Bulgarian authorities for their cooperation.

The Bonn government's police data center at Wiesbaden, popular-ly nicknamed the "Kommissar Computer," stores Europe's most comprehensive data about terrorists. I feel confident that the West Bank and Gaza, in the long run, will be closely linked to the Kingdom of Jordan."

But the Jordanians are not eager to endorse the idea if there is oo assurance that it will be accepted by the Israelis or by the Palestinians. Jordanian officials have complained that Israel previously con-tended that Jordan had no legiu-mate elaim to the West Bank, though it has since suggested that the Jordanians could play a role in negotiating the region's future.

Last month, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt suggested that his country and Jordan could ease Israeli fears about its security by assuming a five-year transitional sovereignty over their formerly held areas until a Palestinian entity could be created.

Jordanian officials have been besitant about supporting such a transition, with some, such as Mr.

In a conference with key congressional leaders, top presidential economic advisers esentially acceded to the $15 billion tax-cut plan as a tactical maneuver to help break the current impasse in the House Ways and Means Committee.

The panel now is scheduled to put off any further action oo the overall tax bill until after the July 4 recess — making it unlikely to re-sume formal drafting of the legisla-tion until mid-July.

Separate Votes

The administration's agreement to support the $15-billion cut was conditioned on a pledge by con-gressional leaders to allow separate votes on a handful of the Presiden Carter's "tax-reform" proposals when the bill reaches the floor.

Judge Reed said the parishes are "members of a much larger and more important religious organization" and are bound by its orders and judgments. The ruliog meant that the build-ings, art objects and other property acquired by parishioners through the years cannot be taken by the parisbes in the split, but must remain with the pareot church.

Bishop Robert Rusack, who heads the Los Angeles diocese, said he was "gratified" by the court's ruling.

He said it was "extremely difficult" for the diocese to go into court to settle the matter of property ownership, but he added that it had "no other choice," given its responsibilities for the church's resources.

"When there is a schism, all suffer and neither side can rejoice." Bishop Rusack said. "Each party has failed to some degree and all are called to repentence. Judge Reed's decisioo came in the form of an intended ruling to be entered as a final judgment at a later date. The case is one of several similar cases across the nation on the law of "implied charitable trust." If it stands on appeal, it could have an influence oo howother cases involving the same issues are decided.

Detente on the Ropes

The most important thing to be said about Pravda's lengthy reply to President Carter's latest speech on Soviet-U.S. relations is that detente lives; it is too deeply rooted in mutual self-interest to be swept away by the winds of rhetoric - from either side.

Yet amid the welter of accusations and stridently defensive language, there can be found four deep-seated Soviet grievances. The Carter administration may well be unable to satisfy any of them — and it should not satisfy them all. But Americans should have no doubt that they are real.

Moscow plainly remains distressed over the Carter administration's continuing criticism of the denial of civil and human rights in the Soviet Union. On no issue is Moscow more sensitive - or more vulnerable.

The Russians are also outraged by the Carter administration's efforts to cozy up to China. Some of the anti-Soviet remarks during and after a recent trip to China by Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, obviously fed Moscow's limitless paranoia on this issue.

Third is the apparently genuine fear that the West may be embarking on a new lap in the arms race, responding to the fear of an imminent Soviet advantage but damaging to the stability of security arrangements on both sides.

And finally there seems to be concern that the Carter administration is either too weak or too short-sighted to make a political fight for the values of detente. Otherwise why would Carter express such doubts that he can get Senate approval for the centerpiece of detente, a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty?

Underlying all these grievances must be Moscow's bewilderment and frustration over the workings of the U.S. political system. When President Carter says that the stability of detente requires it to be "broadly defined and truly reciprocal" he means that SALT's chances in the Senate will depend on public perceptions of the Soviet Union in all matters, from intervention in Africa to the safety of U.S. businessmen and of Soviet dissidents in Moscow. The Soviet leaders seem not to believe that this "linkage" is real, and that it cannot be so easily manipulated even by the strongest of U.S. administrations.

The irony of it all is that the speecb that

Moscow regarded as in some ways provocative was intended by Carter to be conciliatory. The Russians were evidently most nettled by the president's contention that they would have to cboose "either confrontation or cooperation."

Secretary of State Vance has since tried to knock the sharp edge off that pbrase but, like Carter, was only expressing the realities of U.S. politics when be noted that "both sides will continuously be making choices between an emphasis on the divergent elements of our relationship, and an emphasis on the cooperative ones.

The president and Vance have been right to advise the Russians that their view of detente as a set of carefully insulated bilateral agreements, centering on SALT, is not tenable in the United States. And they are right to say that U.S. governments will continue to decry Soviet intervention in Africa and arms buildups in Europe, and to speak out when they see the Soviet Union depriving its citizens of the human rights it undertook at Helsinki to protect.

But Carter and Vance might also do more to reassure the Soviet Union on some counts. Whatever the Chinese leaders want from a link to the United States, it should not be a primary objective or even tactic of an U.S. administration to confuse the desirability of reconciliation with Peking with the life-anddeath issues under negotiation with Moscow.

In some matters, there may well be a greater common interest in collaboration with the Chinese and there may even be value in occasionally annoying the Russians on that score. To speak of common strategic interests against the Russians, however; offends not only Moscow but also the facts.

On the same day that Secretary Vance assured Congress that detente was not on the ropes, Muhammad Ali was defending it in Moscow. He asserted that he knew Carter, had now come to know Leonid Brezhnev as well, and was sure that both men want peace. He had hard words only for Leon Spinks, who took his beavyweight crown away last February. "I will bury him." Ali promised for their rematch. Pessimists in both Washington and Moscow might draw encouragement from the fact that only a decade and a half ago such a phrase figured in East-West diplomacy as well.

Watergate, Italian Style

As these things go, the resignation of Giovanni Leone as president of Italy was rather sudden. In a similar U.S. case, still fresh in memory, it took more than two years of rising scandal, court action, investigations and hearings, to force an incumbent president to resign. Mr. Leone's position was not so powerful as Mr. Nixon's, but neither was the public pressure on him so intense: Ever since the Lockheed affair in early 1976, Mr. Leone had been up to his ears in accusations of financial corruption. Having brazened it out for more than two years, he appeared perfectly capable of brazening it out for the remaining six months of his term. But last week, after a series of magazine articles opening further charges, he unexpectedly stepped down. Why?

The explanation lies, evidently, in the uneasy partnership and rivalry between Italy's two biggest political parties. The Christian Democrats run the government, but they do it with the support and cooperation of the Communists. The Communists' intention is to ease themselves into cabinet offices by such gradual stages that no one will be frightened. That strategy is inevitably generating great strain within the party, as radicals and reformers assail the leadership for its obedient assistance to a decidedly conservative Christian Democratic administration.

The local elections last month greatly increased that strain. Perhaps it was a reaction to the murder of Aldo Moro a few days earlier, but the Communists suffered a sharp setback. The party decided that it requires a more aggressive posture. It couldn't move to the left ideologically without alienating the middle-class voters whom it is so patiently courting. The obvious solution was to return to the emphasis on honest, efficient administration, on which much of the Communists' success over the years has rested. When the magazine articles began going into the tangled financial affairs of Mr. Leone, who is a Christian Democrat, the Communists seized their opportunity and called on him to, resign. That gave the Christian Democrats a choice between defending corruption or letting Mr. Leone go. With dry eyes, they cut their losses - and Mr. Leone went.

Since the office of president is largely cere-monial in Italy, it will not matter vastly who replaces him. But this incident may lead to parliamentary elections sooner than either of the big parties expected or wanted. Italian law prohibits elections during the last six months of a president's term, and the parties were counting on that technicality to get them safely through the rest of this year. Neither of them is eager to face the voters this year. Neither is entirely sure of the public reaction to the Moro kidnapping. Neither wants to pursue the issues of party financing toward which the Leone case points. But it is also true that they do not entirely control the course of Italian politics. The Leone affair leaves the alliance between conservatives and Communists a little cooler and more competitive than before — which is not necessarily a bad thing.

The African policy speech delivered by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in Atlantic City indicated that the United States would not try to mirror Soviet and Cuban activities in Africa, Instead, it would pursue wide-ranging and positive policies which would be designed to strengthen African independence. His statement is welcome not only because it helps to clarify U.S. policy toward Africa, the subject of particular confusion in the last few months, but also because it introduces some rational analysis to what has been in danger of becoming an overheated debate on overall Western policy in the area.

The aims should not be to attempt to match the Russians but listening to what Africa itself says it wants, to aid African countries to find their own stability and their own prosperity. The testing ground for the future of Western-African relations will undoubtedly be southern Africa. Here, the West, led by Britain and the United States, can only pursue negotiated settlements in Rhodesia and Namibia while remaining aware that the problems posed by South Africa are in the end likely to prove even more acute.

By Abdullah Salah

Cabinet's decision on Sunday is primarily designed to avoid committing Israel to withdraw from the West Bank and to accept the right of the inhabitants of those territories to self-determination, thus blocking U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East. This decision, on the future of the West Bank and Gaza, comes as an additional proof of Israel's obstruction of the emergence, at long last, of a viable and just peace in the area. Especially, when the sovereign right of Israel to exist as a state under UN Resolution 242 is accepted by the Arab

It is now apparent that the Israe-li leadership is unable to decide whether their ultimate aim is an 'imperial Israel" or just "Israel." Peace or endless struggle hinges upon a definitive answer to this question by the Israeli leadership.

The late President Lyndon B. Johnson declared, in the aftermath of the 1967 war, that the United States was committed to the survival of Israel hut not to its conquests. Henry A. Kissinger, has said the same thing. King Hussein of Jor-dan has been stating for a decade that Israel can have peace or territory, but cannot have both. Security Council Resolution 242 was categorically emphatic on the inad-missibility of the acquisition of territory by force and called for withdrawal of Israeli forces from the occupied territories in exchange

Defied

Israel has openly defied this legal and moral framwork by annexing Arah East Jerusalem - and exteenfold so that it now comprises one-fifth of the entire West Bank: hy colonizing one-third of the rest of the West Bank and portions of the Gaza Strip; and by according itself the sole prerogative of retaining or returning whatever chunks of territory in both Sinar and the Golan Heights it chooses. Can this be anything but forcible conquest?

A great deal of publicity has been given to Mcnachem Begin's so-called peace plan, hut very few know what it is all about. Following are the reasons why the Arab world has rejected it outright:

 It is a de facto perpetuation and legalization of the existing sta-tus quo of military occupation, masquerading under the deceptive terminology of autonomy or self-rule. Under the plan, Israel would continue to assume responsibility, not only for "external security" had also for internal police dufies.

Lose Titles

A few military governors would presumably lose their glamorous utles. But they would continue to assume the powers of such posi-tions under a different guise.

 Israel would continue to exercise "velo power" over the repa-triation of Palestinians from their dispersal, including the close to hundreds of thousands of inhabitants of Arab Jerusalem, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, who be-came displaced persons in 1967, let alone the 1.75 million Palestinian refugees who became displaced per-sons in 1948 and would be completely left out in the wilderness of their diaspora.

• The "Administrative Council" proposed under the self-rule plan would have jurisdiction or au-thority over Israeli settlers, who have already colonized the heartland of East Jerusalem and the West Bank. Thus, the Israeli settlers in those areas would enjoy extraterritorial privileges that may have belonged in the age of colonialism but are quite incompatible with the present era.

• Thus, the Palestinian plight was reduced, in one stroke, to municipal autonomy in one small segment of 1948 mandated Palestine, and to one small portion of the Palestinian people.

• Why this plan? In all likeli-hood, it is to disenfranchise the 1.5 million Palestinian Arabs from the mainstream of life — by offering them an option of acquiring Jordanian or Israeli citizenship without Jordan's even being present to offer or withhold such citizenships. It would cordon off those people into reservations until such times as life becomes so untenable and oppressive that the Palestinian inhabhants would either vanish by mortal attrition or be forced, by various

WASHINGTON — The Israeli means, to leave their ancestral

 Theoretically, Palestinians of the occupied territories would be able, under the self-rule plan, to settle in Israel. But ask any Palestinian about this seemingly generous offer and he will tell you it is a farce. For they know that practically all lands in Israel are either state domain and, therefore, inalienable, or in the ownership of the Jewish National Fund, the Histadrut and other arms of the state of Israel.

Agonizing

But is certain that peace could be chieved swiftly if the Israeli leadership terminates its agonizing over the question of "Israel" or "imperi-al Israel." Armaments can never give a final answer. What gives the answer is a fundamental reappra-isal of Israel's innermost attitude.

As for Jordan, the massive familial relationships between the peo-ple on both sides of the River Jordan render it inconceivable that the government of Jordan, the Pales-tine Liberation Organization and the masses of the Jordanian and Palestinian people would countenance suicidal separation. Jordan has consistently insisted that Palestinians must exercise the right to self-determination under UN

It might be the wise course, in the meantime, to establish forth-with an interim UN administration during which the inhahitants have breath and ponder their choice, pending a plebiscite.

An additional five-year Israeli rule with license for additional co-lonialization will leave little territory to talk about, not to mention the devastating impact of five additional years of occupation. A con-sciousness and application of peace is totally at variance with n consciousness of war, fear of war, and perpetual enmity. Most of the Arab world, including the Palestinians, have opted for a durable peace. The Israeli leadership evidently has not. When it does, then peace will not

President Sadat could also take further action to meet Israel's fears. Israelis are understandahly skeptical of Arab promises after all the wars and hatred they have suffered. It is one thing for Sadat to talk to journalists about security ideas. It would be quite another to offer, directly, steps so concrete that they would survive the person of Anwar

Another useful Sadat move would he to clarify a thought he first put forward in a New York Times interview on May, 10. This was that Jordan and Egypt have responsibility for the West Bank and Gaza_after an Israeli withdrawal, negotiating their permanent status and security arrangements with Is-rael and Palestinian representa-

Sadat did not explain his idea at the time, and Begin attacked it as a demand that Israel withdraw and only then get an opportunity to discuss security arrangements. Since then Egyptian diplomats have indicated that the proposal is hinged on Israeli commitment merely to the principle of withdrawal, and that it is designed to belp Israel in dealing with the Palestinians.

All this suggests that Sadat might do well to put forward a formal peace plan of his own in the next month or so. Israel and its friends have been highly critical of him for not doing so, and for calling off the Jerusalem political talks. The latest Begin government statement shows why he thought the talks would go here. But a move now could make a difference.
In recent weeks Sadnt has eemed to hint that before long he might dramatically abandon his initiative. Such a step, coming on top of his repressive internal political moves, would surely harden Is-raeli opinion and do lasting dam-age to the possibilities of peace. Fortunately, that prospect now seems less likely. He reacted in low key to the Israeli Cabinet statement

Plotting For Vance point

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — Out of the war there has emerged a clear victor in the struggie for preeminence in foreign policy. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance — not the widely publicized national security adviser, Zhigniew Brzezinski — has come out on top.

Still .ii remains a question whether Mr. Vance can assert himself for long as the undisputed mas-ter of foreign policy under Presi-dent Carter. For it is not clear that he has the personal qualities to be a strong secretary of state.

Mr. Vance's praises do not need to be sung by me. He is well known to be a highly competent and wide-ly experienced official, straightforward, honest, clear-thinking and articulate. He has a firm grasp on most international problems, and he understands their interplay with U.S. domestic politics.

the has been said against him that he is a mere problem-solver, without n world historical philosophy. He does believe in the slow, patient address to areas of tension; he chips away at problems and makes progress by slogging through. That may not be as flashy as the "big think" abstractions fashionable in some quarters. But it is a philosophy, and a philosophy that happens to suit a time when little else beside patient slogging can year.

Most important of all, Vance gets on with practically everybody. He commands the support of President Carter and of all the presi-dent's chief aides — Vice President Mondale, Hamilton Jordan and Robert Strauss. He is the white hope of both the disarmers under Paul Warnke and the Pentagon under Harold Brown. The Congress likes him, and so does the diplomatic community.

Indeed this overwhelming support assured that he would eventu-ally hold off the challenge of Mr. Brzezinski, For Brzezinski, apart from President and Mrs. Carter, can probably count no more than five supporters in all of Washing-

Some of the traits which have carned Vance such widespread approval, however, complicate his present task. He does not assert himself in ways that give other people a hard time — particularly other people in power. On the con-trary he is used — as a lawyer serving clients - to making accommodations with the boss. As secretary of state he has been far too deferential to the mere notions of the president.

He has repeatedly gone off on futile trips merely because the presi-dent pledged he would go. Thus he visited. Africa a couple of months ago on an abortive mission that was below his dignity in the first place — n mission to decide which among several black leaders would agree to accept the flag of surrender being waved by Rhodesia's white leader, Ian Smith.

In keeping with that deference is a distaste for bureaucratic politicking. Vance can get his pound of flesh when he wants to. He once extracted a hand-written note of apology from a White House aide who seemed to be circulating rumors that the secretary of state would have to retire soon because "" ! of ill health.

But Vance rarely asserts that ... power on his own behalf, and never for the sake of his department. Lesser officials at State, on issues that the secretary is not handling personally, have to do everything through the National Security Council. Not a few mistakes - in-Council Not a tew massacratic cluding the hlunder of supporting Somalia in its losing war against Ethiopia — could have been avoided if State had now the kind of authority it used to have under Secre-taries Dulles and Acheson.

At the Center

One reason Vance is so little prone to take charge lies in his post-Vietnam experience. As a leading — perhaps the leading — lawyer in New York, he lived at the center of an establishment which had lost confidence. He came to believe in a certain U.S. guilt — for the condition of the blacks, for the plight of the Palestinians and, of course, for aggressive actions all over the Third World.

Those themes still persist in his. Those themes still persist in his approaches to such problems as the Near East. Africa, Southeast Asia and Latin America. They make Vance a patsy for the hardliness, and complicate more than necessary his central aim of working out areas of agreement with the Soviet Union. Union.

None of the weaknesses I have cited are insuperable. The administration's confidence in the secretary of state, now so visible, ought to foster more self-confidence. He can go on to become a distinguished secretary. But achieving that goal depends more upon himself than upon his stars.

ONDON. June 22 (IHT) -The medieval works of art rom the Robert von Hirsch collecion auctioned today at Sotheby's were the hard core of the collection. They were the treasures which gave its glamour - not so much for heir intrinsic beauty as for their nistoric value.

Equally unique is the base of an English Romanesque candlestick piece associated with Gloucester Cathedral. The two other related ehurch pieces are in church treasuries. The price of £550,000 reflects the desperate desire of an institution to get the only available piece. It was bought by the British Railway Pension Fund, which intends to loao it to the British Museum.

More attractive to the general public for their bright colors was the group of Champleve enamels, io which several pieces of historic importance outshone all others. The most coveted of these was one of a pair of arm ornaments believed by some specialists to come from the coronation vestment of the Emperor Frederick I Barbarossa. It is further speculated that they were presented to him by the Russian Prince Andrew Bogulubski (1111-1174) whose embassy visited the Germanie court at Aachen io 1165. Be that as it may, they were given in the 12th ecotury to the Cathedral Vladimir, northeast of Moscow, where they remained uotil 1903, and left Russia in 1933 wheo the Hermitage sold it off with other pieces from the famous Botkin colection seized by Soviet officials in 1917. Hence the price of £110,000.

Rarest of all perhaps were three rather elumsier than those of Otto-English champleve enamel plaques, nian Germany, added charm to because so little ecclesiastical Eng-lish art of the Middle Ages survived verdict. the Reformation and the iconoclastie inclinations of King Henry VIII. Their price, £286,000, was lower than that of German enamels chiefbecause Britain is poorer than West Germany. The metalwork department at the Victoria and Albert Museum is known to have hadly wanted the plaques but funds which would have been easily provided for a German museum just were oot available in Loodoo.

Prices are not necessarily a yardstick of desirability, oor is rarity: For sheer beauty, the ivories surpassed the enamels by far.

Francis Perrin Gambols Through Moliere's 'Scapin'

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

DARIS. June 22 (JHT) - The mantle of Fernandel has fallen on Francis Person's shoulders, and he swirls it with panache. Let loose on stage or screen, he can with a minimum of aid blow up a storm of laughter. He has done it more than once. He even made a hit of a French translation of Woody Allen's slightly chilled movie references in farce form, "Play It Again. Sam," a transaction as seemingly improbable as that of a London drawing-room cast tackling "To-haeco Road" or "Is Zat So?"

At the Theatre Athenee where he now gambols, he has a vehicle of sound substance: "Les Fourbenes de Scapin." This is an ideal choice for he is by nature a clown in the Moliere tradition. When a member of the Comedie-Française a few seasons ago, he brightened produc-tions of the comic master's plays with both his inventive acting and his ingenious directorial additions. His presence is always invigorating for he is funny on appearance. The house howls before he opens his

It was during the gap between the court production of "Psyche" and its first public performance in July, 1671, that Moliere tossed off bought hy Zurich dealer Edgar Mannheimer for £506,000 for the prose farce on the Italian model. In the rush, he helped himself generously to the works of others. The plot is basically that of Terence's "Phormio" and a complete scene, together with a running laugh line that has lasted 300 years. was cribbed from Cyrano de Bergerac. Scapin is Scapino, the stock servant of the commedia dell'arte. From this quickly stirred melange sprang an evergreen comedy.

Path of Romance

The scene is the Naples water-front and Scapin is a rascal of a valet whose intrigues smooth the path of youthful romance. Two angry old men are opposed to their sons' and daughters' marriages. in Heildelberg June 28 at the Gar-The nimble-witted knave, abetted den Hall of the Kunstverein; in by a fellow domestic, breaks down parental hosulity by a host of ruses and trickeries, administering one eredulous papa a severe drubbing after the old boy, in fear of robbery, has sluhered into a sack.

The scene borrowed from CVTano is the one in which the wily Scapin extorts a ransom from Geronte. an avaricious father, informing him that his son has been kidnapped by pirates. "But what the devil was he doing in that galley?" IQue diable allait-il faire dans cette galere?), the repeated exclamation of the bewildered Geronte has been a favorite French eliche ever since. Cyrano wrote it, but Moliere popularized it. Edmund Wilson objected to its frequent misuse in English, mistakenly rendered as "What he is doing

The stately cermonious "Psyche" was designed as a court masque;

people of Paris. It is indicative of and zests II is played without interin that gallery?"

"Scapin" was a favor tossed to the direction it has contagious vitality

Moliere letting social mores go hang and stalking the jolly belly laugh. The role of the conniving flunky, an ancestor of Beaumarchais' Figaro, he undertook himself, apparently with relish and to general enthusiasm.

The play can be a bore in the classroom and often is. It is devised for the boards and not the study: its comic agitation is better seen than read. At the Athence it is utterly unacademie and pedants may object. It is acted for its robust hu-mor and hrio, circused into a show. This has made it a great success and the house is packed nightly with responding youngsters who would yawn over it at school. Moliere's final farce, due to its present treatment, is a hit again. In Pierre Boutron's rampaging mission and without even a momentary letun to its reckless pace. It leaves the spectator breathless, but the galloping performers never tire or become winded. Throughout they are happy, stimulating company.

Perrin, as might be supposed, makes a superh Scapin, husy as a badger in his nonstop lying and cheating as he bounds hither and yon — from the tank representing the Bay of Naples to the masts of anchored ships — in a dazzling feat anchored sings — In a dazzing rear of acrobatic acting. The roundfaced Maurice Risch and the grimvisaged Andre Gill are obliging stooges as the harassed fathers:
Maurice Bonnet is an amusing figure of fun as the graceful gallant of tangled private affairs, while the others, inoculated with the spirit of the venture, contribute to the carnival nature of the grand rollick. "Scapin" at the Athence is total

Accent on Youth in a New 'La Boheme'

GLYNDEBOURNE, Eogland, June 22 (fHT) — The cast of the Glyndebourne Festival's new "La Boheme" has a conspicuously American aspect, not to mention a sometimes - if less conspicuous -American accent.

The Minn (Linda Zoghby), the Marcello (Brent Ellis) and the Musetta (Ashley Putnam) are all Americans: So is the conductor, Nicola Rescigno, the enterprising cofounder (in 1957), artistic director and principal conductor of the Dallas Civic Opera. And the Colline is Jamaican-born, Juilliard-schooled Willard White.

But it is nothing indigenously or and has assured it a unique success. What distinguishes this from any other "La Boheme" that I have ever scen is its youth. Nor is this attributable simply to the fact that the Links Dark have to a

By Henry Pleasants singers are indeed, young II is (Alan Charles) as Schaunard, it rather the ingenious manner in does. which John Cox, the producer, has managed to capture and project a youthful spirit and flavor.

> This is not a wholly new production. The sets and costumes are those designed by Henry Bardoo and David Walker for an ill-fated Glyndebourne production directed by Sir Michael Redgrave in 1967. The singers of that production were young Italians whom not even Sir Michael could teach or inspire to act and not up to Puccini's requirements vocally.

Imaginative Grasp

One looked forward to that production in eager anticipation of an exclusively American that gives this production its unique character and has assured it a unique success. John Cox's direction, with his young Americans joined by a young Italian (Alberto Cupido) as Rodolfo and a young Englishman

It's largely a matter of the most solicitous attention to, and the most imaginative grasp of, every detail of stage business suggested by libretto and score, especially the bohemian high jinks of the first and last acts and the hustling Parisian street scene before the Cafe Momus in Act II. It is the kind of teamwork accomplishment that takes a lot of rehearsal, and here at Glyndebourne it has obviously had it.

The singing is of a uniformly high, if oot quite the highest, standard, and even the shortcomings. such as they are - most notably a tendency to sing too loudly in so small a house and, in the case of Alberto Cupido, erratic intonation — are those of youth rather than vocal deficiency or incompetence; they even contribute in an engaging way to the youthful flavor that so becomes this touching tale of four young bohemians and their girl

Concorde. La preuve.

Dr. Walter Lang, the 100,000th Concorde passenger, states:

"I was among the first to choose Concorde." It didn't take very long for certain businessmen to realize that Concorde is the most modern and efficient form of transportation in existence. Dr. Long flew Concorde for the first time on February 1, 1976, just ten days ofter the inaugurol flight.

"I've aiready used Concorde 14 times."

Dr. Lang, who is the Director of M.D. Papier Fobriken's bronch in Sao Paulo, flies regularly on Concorde. In two years, he has now proven the value of Concorde to his enterprise.

"I'm delighted to be the 100,000th Concorde passenger."

On Wednesday, June 14, like all the other times, Dr. Lang left Munich for Paris. He boarded the Concorde of Roissy-Chorles de Goulle for Rio and returned to São Paulo. From Munich to São Paulo, his flight took 11 hours, 6 hours and 20 minutes less than by any other subsanic flight.

6 hours and 20 minutes of time precious to both Dr. Lang and his company. In two years, Concorde has proven to the last dubious few that a new ero has begun in aviotion. From naw on, "efficiency" is synonymous with Concorde.

The best of France to all the world.

IOS Liquidators Worried About Vesco's Voyages

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP-DJ) competing with each other for the chunks of cash or securities that ocagain — a development that is causing apprehension among the lawyers and accountants engaged in a world-wide effort to recover the remaining assets of the huge IOS Ltd. financial empire he once took over and plundered.

Mr. Vesco, a fugitive from the United States where five indictments are pending against him stemming from alleged securiues frauds, left his residence in Costa Rica April 30 for the Bahamas, Mexico, Venezuela and the Britishowned Cayman Islands owned Cayman Islands.

The supposition is that he may be taking the trip to hunt for a new haven where he would not be extradiled to the United States. The fear is that he may attempt to use assets stolen from non-Bahamian IOS en-bues to reimburse plundered IOS companies there in hopes the Bahamian government would give

"If the liquidators in the Bahahas deal with him, it could cause a lot of woulde. Vesco could pretend cooperate with one or two of them at the expense of the others, and drive a wedge that would break up live years of cooperation," says a New York attorney for one of the through this cooperation, more than $360 million in cash and realstate holdings have been recovered by the liquidators. But more than $100 million is still unaccounted for and believed to have been squirreled away for use by Vesco and his former colleagues. Probably the largest single sum that is unaccounted for is $60 million that Vesco removed from Fund of Funds in 1972 and later concealed "in at least 17 banks" in Costa Rica, Panama and elsewhere, according to John Orr. Canadian liquidator of Fund of Funds and IOS Growth Fund.

Although most of the available assets have been regained, and bopes of finding the missing $100 million or so are scant, liquidators say they still have work to do. Suits are pending against some well-heeled U.S. concerns which, if sucheeled U.S. concerns which, if successful, could yield fresh money to shareholders. Mr. Orr brought a $270-million damage suit in 1975 for Fund of Funds against its former accountant, Arthur Andersen & Co., charging it did nothing to stop fraudulent transactions that wasted Fund of Funds' assets in the late 1960s. Andersen says it did nothing wrong.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Vesco had unsuccessfuly sought the sid of the incoming Carter administration to settle criminal and civil suits filed against him by the government. "Vesco felt he could give (the United States) considerable help in its relations with Panama and the Central American and the Central American countries," one of the intermediaries recalls, "In return for what he contributed, the U.S. might give consideration to winding up his affairs. ## FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

BP Seeking Monsanto Plants in EEC

British Petroleum's chemicals unit, which last week announced plans to acquire the hulk of Union Carbide's European chemicals operations for $400 million, is now seeking Monsanto's polystyrene and expandable polystyrene business within the Common Market under terms of a £20-million offer cur-rently under discussion. The offer, subject to various government and board approvals, also includes Monsanto's manufacturing facilities at Wingles. France, which has a capacity of about 130,000 tons of the products a year. BP Chemicals would also acquire the 33-percent interest held by Monsanto in Forth Chemicals, a styrene monomer producer in which BP holds the remaining interest. Monsanto would continue to operate polystyrene and expandable polystyrene manufacturing units at its factory in Newport, South Wates, but the output would be sold to BP. Monsanto believes that prospects are unattractive for polystyrene producers, who unlike BP, are not fully integrated into basic raw materials.

Ford, Toyo Kogyo Broaden Links

Ford Motor and Toyo Kogyo, maker of rotary-engined Mazda cars, have agreed to broaden their business relationship but stopped short of forming a new capital tie-up. Sumitomo Bank president Chihiro Isoda says the agreement was reached during a meeting between chairman Henry Ford 2d and top executives of Sumitomo Bank, which holds a large equity share in Toyo Kogyo. The talks were very significant. I think we have deepened our mutrust in each other, Mr. Isoda says. He discounted speculation the two auto makers might agree on a new capital agreement during Mr. Ford's visit to Japan, "That subject has not been discussed by either side," Mr. Isoda says. The two companies agreed that Toyo Kogyo would produce power transmission axies and additional small trucks for Ford on a companies agreed that the companies are supplied to the companies and additional small trucks for Ford on a companies and additional small trucks. U.S. Clears Lockheed of Overcharges

Lockheed Shipbuilding & Construction did not overcharge the U.S. government for steel used to build seven amphibious transport vessels, the General Accounting Office has concluded according to an aide to Sen. William Proxmire. D-Wis. The Renegoation Board, a watchdog agency that checks into profits made from defense contracts, alleged a year ago that the company, a subsidiary of Lockheed Aircraft, may have charged the government for $10-million worth of steel that was unaccounted for. Lockheed denied the charge and claimed it could prove its shipbuilding division never billed the Navy for 117 million pounds of missing steel.

more profitable sales have been rising faster recently than rental income, International Business Machines sees a slowing in sales growth this year — to the detriment of earnings.

Although renting computers ulti-mately is more profitable than selling, sales provide profits more quickly. Over the last two years, revenues from sales have soared 56 percent while revenues from rented machines and services have risen less than 12 percent. Profits have gone up accordingly, reaching a re-turn on equity of nearly 22 percent in 1977. Now, however, the sales growth is slowing.

"Purchase revenue, of course, is important," IBM chairman Frank Cary said in an interview, "But we expect that rate of growth in purchase revenue will decline this year compared to last year and we'll have some quarter-to-quarter earnings comparisons that aren't as

Carter Said Ready To Tax Oil Imports

WASHINGTON, June 22 (1HT) The Carter administration moved on two fronts today to try to bring into being a meaningful energy program that would help strengthen the dollar. First, President Carter urged key members of Congress to complete work on legislation to cut energy consumption before the Bonn economic summit in July. He reportedly is prepared to announce at the summit that he will impose oil import fees if Congress fails to act. Energy Secretary James Schlesin-ger then announced a standhy gasoline rationing plan that could be triggered by another oil crisis, such as a new embargo or a Mideast war that could interrupt the U.S. oil supply.

The link between the U.S. energy plan, still bogged down in congres-sional wrangling, and the economic summit comes from pressure on the United States from its main trading partners. West Gerntany, Japan, Britain and France, to cut the huge U.S. trade deficit, due largely to heavy imports of oil.

Cut Consumption

Mr. Schlesinger said that was "an option," but a decision on whether to raise import fees — making foreign oil more costly here — would depend on the President's assessment of the prospects for congressional action before the expected October legislative recess, He said the president did not set a deadline for imposing import levies but hoped Congress would give hint the energy bill before he leaves about one-third at that time.

Dollar Surges In Late Rally

LONDON, June 22 (AP-DJt -The dollar staged a broad rally on European foreign exchange markets today on hopes that the United States may initiate actions at next month's economic summit in Bonn to earh oil imports.

A flurry of dollar buying crupted following news that President Carter is prepared to announce that he will act to raise oil prices through increased import fees unless Congress shows its willingness to enact his year-old proposal for a domestic oil tax.

"A very rapid but restrained inprovement in the dollar" followed the news, one dealer at a major U.K. bank said. He characterized the situation as "disorderly," especially because the news came towards the end of the European business day when trading was "quite thin."

Against the Deutsche mark, the dollar rose to 2.0885 compared with 2.08 DM immediately before the news and up 1.40 pfennig from late yesterday. The dollar firmed to 1.8815 Swiss frames, up 1.17 centimes from its mid-afternoon level and 1.65 centimes from overnight. Against the year it climbed to 211.38 from 210.48 year earlier and 210.60 ven overnight.

The dollar also edged up to 4.5825 French francs from 4.5758 earlier and 4.5738 francs yesterday. Sterling, meanwhile, fell nearly one cent on the news to $1.8380, for a loss of 1.2 cents on the day. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at

Influence Too Great, Swiss Banker Charges

Futures Said Unsettling to Gold Market

By Bhushan Bahree

ZURICH, June 22 (AP-DJ) -The increasing influence of gold futures trading in New York and Chicago on the world gold market traditionally dominated by Zunch and London — is drawing fire from at least one of the big three Swiss banks that plays a prominent role

Walter Frey, a general manager of Swiss Bank Corp., says that while U.S. trading in gold has become very important, its influence often unsettles the market. "One an interview.

The danger, Mr. Frey says, is that the New York Commodity Exchange has acquired so much power in the gold market that its influence is greater than London's, and they may misuse it."

In the first five months this year. futures trading volume on Comes at the forthcoming deliberations on totaled 999.513 contracts of 100 the crisis cartel by the EEC Comproy ounces each, up 225 percent mission, the ministry said. It added from the year-earlier period. On that a cartel pact would be especial-Chicago's Mercantile Exchange ly important, since the higher turnover in the period totaled courts of the countries involved 882.000 contracts up 243 percent.

Mr. Frev thinks the Comex is by the Commission.

Not all Swiss gold experts share Mr. Frey's views, however, Rudolf Schreiber, head of Credit Suisse's precious metals department, has no criticism of the way the U.S. gold market operates and influence world trading. The physical gold market is "absolutely not upset" by trading in futures, or "paper gold".

In New York, Robert Trentham, executive vice president of the Comex, says futures prices are indeed more "responsive" to changing conditions than prices of the physical commodities, hut he

U.S. Problem Banks Down to 354 in May

WASHINGTON, June 22 (AP-DJ) — The list of problem banks of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. fell to 354 as of May 31 from 368 at year's end, chairman George Lemaistre said today.

He also noted that there have been four failures so far this year compared to six last year. 16 in The 354 banks in the problem list represent about 2.4 percent of the 14,700 insured banks in the

Idled Farmland To Slow Output Of U.S. Grains

WASHINGTON, June 22 (NYT) U.S. grain and cotton farmers, who together till about 75 percent of the normal crop ocreage, indicated vesterday they were idling more than 20 percent of their land this

As a result, the Agriculture Department is predicting that the 1978 winter wheat crop, which makes up three-quarters of the total wheat production, will be 14-percent smaller than last year's bump-er yield.

The department noted that of the fermers participating in the set-aside program. 6.9 million acres of of their feed grain land would be idled. Last year farmers planted 127.7 million acres in feed grains. Cotton farmers said they planned to idle 554,000 acres. Last year they planted 13.6 million acres, and wheat farmers said they would set aside 10 million acres. Total wheat planting last year was 74.8 millioo

As a result of the freezing of supplies, the anticipation of a smaller 1978 crop and ao increase in the rate of graio exports, wheat and corn prices have been edging up all spring. Since last fall wheat prices and soybeans were up 40 percent.

I have a similar reaction to the late Lionel Trilling. Reading him always makes me feel that Ameri-

he was now reminding me. As the late Randall Jarrell did too in his critical essays. Trilling taught me that the occasional ugliness of BUENOS AIRES, June 22 (IHT) -This is a city awakening late and surring from beaneath a mountaio of uckertape — the calm after the most emotional of storms, in which tens of thousands of Argentines ammed streets, clattering anything from saucepan lids ro the bodywork of police ears, hooting, whishing and singing until the weekly bours.

Thankfully, no semblance of fa-igue tinged the Argentine gallop into the World Cup find yesterday after an afternoon and an evening which exploded with the attacking play this tournament had mourned began, the press here officially reit, ported three bombs - one damaged the bome of Treasury Minis-ier Juan Alemann, a critic of the $700-million cost of stagiog the World Cup, one went off to a resihenral district, and one, a Monton-ros "pamphlet bomb," showered the city center with leaflets of "Arsentios champions. Brazil at times recuptured memories of its true traditions. Its skills gentina suffered for 45 minutes after the Brazilian game, knowing that its task was monumental. Its manager, Luis Menotti, reasoned with the players: "Brazil scored therefore the property of t three goals against Peru with two forwards: it's easy for us to score six with five men up." For 20 minutes. Argentina lived on its nerves - so shocking was the passing of the home nation, that each of Peru's wingers — Juan-Jose Munante who hit a post, and Juan Carlos Oblitas, whose shot was could have scored.

Floodgates Open

Then began the flood. The first goal was scored by the sbarp techskill of Mario Kempes. He pulled down an overhit pass 25 yards out, rode a lierce challenge cool in the heat of the evening's nervousness, shot a goal of unruffled precision. Peruvian goalkeeper Ramon Quiroga. the Argenune-born player on whom so much pressure has been heaped. never got a sniff at that one, or the five that followed - from full-back Alberto Tarantini after a corner. from Kempes, again, another goal of running technique and cootrol, from Leopoldo Luque after a onetwo with Kempes, from substitute insted the first half, with Roberto Rene Houseman within seconds of taking the field, and finally from

The skeptics are claiming Peru was "bought." There is oo evidence of that, although quite clearly, after the secood goal two min-utes before half-time. Peru laid

Carter Opposes U.S. Aid to Push Olympic Athletes

WASHINGTON. June 22 (WP)-The Carter administration is opposed to a proposed $30-million, one-time federal grant to as-sist in the reorganization and development of the U.S. Olympic movements, a House Judiciary subcommittee was told yesterday.

Carson Conrad, executive director, of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, said that the White House believes the $12 million earmarked for permanent training centers and a sports medicine program should be financed by the private sector. The administration is less opposed to the remaining $18 million being used to finance the development and operation of programs ap-proved by the U.S. Olympic Com-mittee, Conrad said.

The $30-million appropriation was recommended by the President's Commission on Olympic Sports, which undertook a . two-year study of the U.S. Olympic movement. The committee concluded that the sum was the "bottom line" needed to achieve reforms that the U.S. amateur sports community considered long over-

It is the hope of that community that the bill will end the jurisdictional disputes between the Nation-Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union over "oghts" to athletes. Sixteen minutes later. Zoff was doubly surprised, moving too late to save an even more speciacular 30-vard drive from Haan, ond the Dutch won where they had earlier been over-physical and cautious. Their shooting is going to give Argentina nightmares.

. Speaking of nightmares. West Germany has provided a few, not the least in losing its 22nd match in the 138-match rule of Helmut Schoen. The master among managers, Schoen retires now and the sadness of his going is summed in his words: "I was bitterly disap-pointed by our defense, which made things easier for our opponents to score goals, especially the third goal." For the record, Germa-ny led through Karl-Heinz Rummenigge, gave away a goal through captain Berti Vogts, went behind to a Hans Krankl goal, equalized through Bernd Holzenbein, and then, three minutes from time, allowed Krankl to score again.

four. Since the test was published. have kept thinking and now have my list up to seven, but it is tou late. The time for creativity is end-ed. There is a new blight for the psyche. Now. suddenly, you have to develop your potential.

Perfectly literate people write letters to public journals about the ur-gency of developing their poten-tials, fully. Some of these letters deplore barriers erected by a hostile society against the development of their potentials, fully,

Others urge people who have let their potentials become flabby to get on with the good work and, like reformed smokers and alcoholics. extol the joy they have found since discovering development of their potentials.

Millions of books course through Millions of books course through the country preaching the good word and offering instruction on how 10 proceed. Gurus, psycholo-gists, quacks and hacks appear on the tube, flaunting their superbly developed potentials and urging the rest of us to abide by their example.

The best to be said for this is that it is better than having to struggle with creativity by lying awake thinking about wire coat hangers. Also, you don't have to go to a friend's house any more and be served a hamburger shaped like

Michelangelo's "David." On the other hand, it does raise the awkward problem of thinking about your potential. The implication is that one owes a responsibility to his potential just as grave as the responsibility one owes to his family. A newspaper recently pub-lished a letter from a woman who said she and her husband had decided not to have children because it would interfere with their labors to develop their own potentials, ful

This telt me briefly with an un-easy conscience. Having finally kissed the children out of the house, I was forced to consider that there might still be a neglected potential sitting around waiting to be taken care of. An uneasy con-science creates a bad temper. After the first twinges of guilt pass, one becomes angry.

What right does a potential have to lurk around the house sulking because it isn't being developed? If I could see it. I would lay violent hands on it and show it the door.

Well, of course, nobody has ever well, of course, nobody has ever seen a potential, although certain people regularly claim to. "I saw her potential when she was just a child in fourth grade." people are always saying of famous perform-ers. The same kind of people see flying saucers, and maybe they do. I don't, and don't want to, although I would rather see a flying saucer I would rather see a flying saucer than stroll into the dining room one day and see my own potential helping itself to bacon and eggs.

It is hard to believe that anybody really wants to see his own potential, since in most cases it would be depressingly small. Suppose those people who can see the potentials of fourth-grade children told all of them what their potentials looked like. What a dreadful thing to tell children. That this one has a potential for slovenly housekeeping, this one for drug addiction, this one for 40 years of hard commuting crowned with a Social Security check, this one for playing the violin at the curb during theater inter-

Mosl potentials tend to look like that. I suspect, which is why they worked the world out in such a way that potentials can't be seen. Not knowing what our potentials look like, we are able to keep hoping. which keeps us plugging along, which keeps open the chance we may run into a lucky accident, like an afternoon of happiness or an entire day free of disaster. Life bestows its gifts whimsically. It is one of the consequences of what Albert Camus called "the benign indifference of the universe." If there is a potential following me around, it will have to take care of its own development. I'm too busy trying to figure out how to get

National Airlines Flight 51 was high above the plains of Texas when a vision, of sorts, appeared in the aisle. Passengers gasped. Flight attendants stared. Before them was a young woman. Blonde, lovely, very happy — and completely nude. "She had a beautiful body," said a woman passenger who declined to give her name. "She perched on top of Row 27, guzzling champagne, and the passengers started laughing and elapping. She said she had just inherited $5 million and that's why she was doing it." The DC-10 was midway on its trip from Miami to Los Angeles when the woman, described as formed his own production company and would star in a feature-length film based on the life and roles of the dancer Nijinsky. Baryshnikov, who has danced with several heller companies, notably the vshnikov, who has danced with several baller companies, notably the American Ballet Theater, since his defection from the Soviet Union in 1974, will join the New York City. Ballet this summer. He is said to have chosen Nijinsky as the subject of his first starring role in films because several of the ballers for which Nijinsky was famous are in the dancer's own repertory. These include "Spectre de la Rose," Petroushka," and "Pavillon d'Armide." when the woman, described as — among other things — about 25, streaked down the aisle of the "no frills" tourist section from first-class. Passengers told the Miami

One of the best-known soccer enthusiasts is Henry Kissinger, also one of the world's best-known glo-betrotters. The former secretary of state has put his two enthusiasms together in Buenos Aires, where he and his wife, Nancy, are attending and his wife, Nancy, are attending the final games of the World Cup. The main purpose of the trip is the games, but Kissinger had a lunch date Wednesday with Jorge Rafael Videla, president of Argentina, and on Saturday he will address the inaugural meeting of a new Argentine Council on International Relations. Council on International Relations. founded by 12 former Argentine foreign ministers. ...

With their five-day stay on the Gulf of Aqaba ended. King Hussein and Queen Noor al-Hussein of Jordan flew to Edinburgh to continue their honey-moon. The king and his new queen, the former Elizabeth Halaby, were seen off at the airport at Amman Crown Prince Hassan and sever-Jordanian and British officials. The royal couple was expected to be in Britain for about 10 days, on what was called a private visit.

Beginning in mid-July, personnel at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, will have no trouble remembering the name of the Army base commander. The Pentagon announced that the new commandant will be Maj. Gen. Benjamin Harrison, That's one coincidence. Another is that Harrison's wife's name is Carolyn, and the wife of the 23d president, for whom the fort was named, was Caroline Harrison. Harrison said that many people have assumed he was a descendant of President Harrison, but there's no relation.
